JGC Canelés de Bordeaux - used stick blender. Rested three days. Used clarified butter. Realized egg weights incorrect return to individual count next time. Recipe modified. Reheated molds and drained before freezing. Final mix is without whisk. Preheated one hour after reaching temp. THE WORST CUL BLANC IVE EVER EXPERIENCED!

2 Oct 2022

Followed exact Taste of Artisan recipe. Had 260g left over. Did not open the door at any time to rotate. Look at 40, 50 and 60 minutes. Pulled at 60. 9 cul blanc

Same as above but with steel. Oven was still warm. Continued to preheat 45 min after temp reached. Really careful with mold temp...just warm. Only 4 this time. They were charcoal and went in trash can.

10 Oct 22

Perfect Loaf recipe. Followed exactly with 100% beeswax. Made six and three cul blanc.

11 Oct 22

Continue with Perfect Loaf batch. After 10 minute back, left cup down for a few minutes. Then picked off center dot before placing in freezer.

15 minute 450 convection

Reduced to 350 convection with first check at 40 minutes. A complete mess. All six cul blanc and some cratered.

22 Oct 22

Back to original Taste of Artisan recipe but full recipe. Applied white oil normal. Some fine and some cul blanc. Baked 8

23 Oct 22

Baked remaining 8 After white oil app, returned to oven and then drained. All had cul blanc.

31 Oct 22

Used standard recipe. Heated molds for one minute. Cooled to warm to touch. A few came out perfect and most with cul blanc.

1 Nov 22

Same as 31 Oct but started at 475F. Two were perfect. One sort of in the middle and three cul blanc. Same batch of batter as 31 Oct but just a day older.

X November 22

Wolfert recipe. After coating, returned to oven for two minutes and poured out excess. A few with cul blanc. Much improved. Next time, will return to oven with open down.

7 December 2022

Wolfert recipe. Heated molds for 2 minutes at 350°. Coated rather quickly. Returned to oven, inverted, for one minute. I baked 12, 6 of which were perfect. 3 had petit cul blanc and 3 had grand cul blanc.
